

Robyn Scott

Robyn is co-founder and CEO of Apolitical, a global peer-to-peer platform for government, created to help public servants find the ideas, experts and partners they need to solve society's hardest problems. Robyn previously co-founded OneLeap, a London-based executive education company, and Level Up, which teaches income generation skills to vulnerable young people in Southern Africa. She has written an acclaimed memoir about growing up in Botswana. She is an ambassador for the Access to Medicine Index, an advisor to the Responsible Mining Index, a World Economic Forum Young Global Leader and a Gates Scholar. She has a BSc in Bioinformatics from Auckland University and a Masters in Bioscience Enterprise from Cambridge University.

